Center for National Defense, The Heritage Foundation

The 2021 Index of U.S. Military Strength is The Heritage Foundation's seventh annual assessment of the United States Armed Forces' ability to provide for the common defense. This year's assessment reflects that progress has been made in building up America's military forces, but a great deal of work remains. This year's Index provides a fresh, authoritative assessment of the U.S. military and updates on major threats to U.S. interests and the ability of allies to contribute to common security interests, along with a brand new chapter on the U.S. Space Force.

This highly anticipated event will feature keynote remarks from Representative William "Mac" Thornberry. Mr. Thornberry is retiring from Congress at the end of this year, following a long and distinguished tenure of supporting a strong national defense. He first joined Congress and the House Armed Services Committee in 1994, and currently serves as the Committee's ranking member.

Please join us to hear his candid insights into the state of military affairs as he concludes this tremendous period of service, followed by a presentation of the key takeaways from this year's Index by Heritage's Senior Research Fellow Dakota Wood.

The 2020 election perplexed many in the media and the coastal elites. In Florida, Cuban-American and Puerto Rican voters helped deliver the state for President Trump; in the Rio Grande Valley, Texas' Mexican-American heartland also turned out in unexpected numbers for the President. Even in the Golden State, Chinese-American parents organized to turn back an attempt to reintroduce racial preferences in university admissions. And throughout the country, African-American voters, especially men, voted for Trump also in unexpected rates.

What happened? Why? Was Identity Politics the biggest loser in 2020?

How to Fix the Broken UN Human Rights Council

Hosted by

Brett D. Schaefer

Jay Kingham Senior Research Fellow in International Regulatory Affairs,
Margaret Thatcher Center for Freedom, The Heritage Foundation

The United Nations Charter charges the organization with “promoting and encouraging respect for human rights and for fundamental freedoms for all.” Sadly, the UN has often failed to fulfill this obligation. In particular, the Human Rights Council has demonstrated bias and ineptitude, too often manipulated by the world’s worst human rights abusers. The U.S. left the Council in 2018 after other governments failed to support much-needed reforms to prevent human rights abusers from joining and eliminate discrimination against Israel. It is a tall task to fix a body that, in the words of Amb. Craft, “is a haven for despots and dictators, hostile to Israel, and ineffectual on true human rights crises.” Please join us as Amb. Craft discusses lessons learned and offers suggestions for reforms that would help the Council live up to its purpose.

The Launch of the 2021 Index of U.S. Military Strength

*Tuesday, November 17, 2020
11:00 AM – 12:15 PM*

Keynote remarks by

The Honorable William “Mac” Thornberry (R-TX)
Ranking Member, United States House Committee on Armed Services

Introductory remarks by

Kim R. Holmes, Ph.D.
Executive Vice President, The Heritage Foundation

Followed by a presentation from

Dakota L. Wood
Senior Research Fellow, Defense Programs,
Center for National Defense, The Heritage Foundation

The 2021 Index of U.S. Military Strength is The Heritage Foundation's seventh annual assessment of the United States Armed Forces' ability to provide for the common defense. This year's assessment reflects that progress has been made in building up America's military forces, but a great deal of work remains. This year's Index provides a fresh, authoritative assessment of the U.S. military and updates on major threats to U.S. interests and the ability of allies to contribute to common security interests, along with a brand new chapter on the U.S. Space Force.

This highly anticipated event will feature keynote remarks from Representative William "Mac" Thornberry. Mr. Thornberry is retiring from Congress at the end of this year, following a long and distinguished tenure of supporting a strong national defense. He first joined Congress and the House Armed Services Committee in 1994, and currently serves as the Committee's ranking member.

Please join us to hear his candid insights into the state of military affairs as he concludes this tremendous period of service, followed by a presentation of the key takeaways from this year's Index by Heritage's Senior Research Fellow Dakota Wood.
